Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

A SHREWD thrust at political hokum was delivered by Secretary Morgenthau Friday when he told congress he had evidence that some of the members who were working so hard for silver legislation were at the same time speculating in silver stocks.

Vote on Silver Is Set for Monday; Bonus Compromise

Dies Bill Granting 25 Per Cent Premium Likely to Pass

ONE-VOTE MARGIN

Kennedy of New York Saves Roosevelt on Bonus Balloting

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Speaker Rainey and the silver bloc swerved from alignment Friday with the administration and the house coinage committee chairman, and agreed to force a test vote Monday on the silver bills which lack the approval of the secretary of the Treasury.

After a conference with the silver bloc, which Chairman Somers, Democrat, New York, of the coinage committee left when he was accused of being unfriendly toward silver legislation, Rainey announced bills by Representative Dies, Democrat, Texas, and Representative Fiesinger, Democrat, Ohio, would be brought up Monday under a suspension of the rules.

The procedure requires a two-thirds majority for passage. Rainey said he thought both bills would receive a majority but that the Dies bill had the best chance of passing.

The silverites who talked with Rainey conferred Thursday with Secretary Morgenthau about the bills. It was said the secretary thought there should be no silver legislation for a while. His opinion was reported to be the same as that attached to President Roosevelt—that nothing further should be done for silver until there was opportunity to determine the results of what already has been done.

Go To Speaker
The silver bloc disagreed and took its case to Rainey Friday. Rainey read two newspaper headlines from the same paper—one saying Morgenthau had barred further silver legislation and the other reporting a drop in the price of silver and wheat.

"These headlines are a complete answer to Mr. Morgenthau," Rainey said. Somers told newspapermen he would support the Dies bill and oppose that of Fiesinger. The Dies bill would authorize the secretary of the Treasury to pay a 25 per cent premium above the world price for silver shipped into this country in payment for exported agricultural surplus commodities. The Fiesinger bill makes mandatory the purchase of up to 1,500,000 ounces of silver on a graduated purchase plan.

Bonus Is Compromised

WASHINGTON—(AP)—One vote Friday saved administration forces from defeat in the house on veterans' payments in the independent offices supply bill. The measure was sent to conference for adjustment of differences between the Senate and House on restoration of federal pay and veterans legislation by a vote of 190 to 189.

It was only through a recapitulation of the balloting, upon the order of Speaker Rainey, that defeat was changed to victory. In the interim, Representative Kennedy of New York changed his vote.

In a dramatic and tense scene that held the usually noisy membership silent, Kennedy arose shortly before the speaker prepared to announce the vote, and settled the issue.

"Mr. Speaker, I desire to change my vote from 'aye' to 'no,'" he said. Cheers went up among the administration members. Cheers and boos were shouted at the smiling New Yorker by the opponents.

Cannery's Motion
The vote was on a motion by Representative Cannon, Democrat, Massachusetts, to have the house reverse its stand taken Wednesday on the $300,000,000 bonus compromise on veterans' benefits and adopt the Senate amendment calling for a $118,000,000 restoration in benefits.

Earlier, the house had voted down, 225 to 161, a motion by Cannon to rescind from the Cison amendment restoring 10 per cent of the 15 per cent federal pay cut. Cannon sought to have the house reverse itself and adopt the Senate amendment to restore the full 15 per cent.

After the back-slapping and cheering died down, Representative Woodrum, Democrat, Virginia, obtained unanimous consent to send the veterans' amendment to conference. Speaker Rainey appointed Woodrum chairman of the house committee which will meet next week with a senate committee to remove differences between the two branches.

Kiwanis Launches Good Will Trips Next Friday Night

Hope Club Members to Visit Spring Hill March 30

TEN FARMER GUESTS

Rev. W. R. Rogers and W. S. Atkins Address Dinner Meeting

Ten Hempstead county farmers were guests at the Kiwanis club dinner Friday night in Hotel Barlow, when plans were announced for a series of goodwill visits into neighboring community centers, and an essay contest, first prize being $50 in cash.

The guests were selected by the club to assist in conducting the goodwill visits, and to work with the club in completing any tasks assumed for the benefit of this section of Arkansas.

The good will trips start Friday night, March 30. The following is the tentative schedule:

Spring Hill, March 30; Patmos, April 6; Shover Springs, April 13; Rocky Mount, April 20; Pine Grove, April 27; DeAnn, May 4; Guernsey, May 11; Ozan, May 18; Saratoga, May 25.

Other communities will be visited later. Visits are made immediately after the Kiwanis club dinner each week, the program starting at 7:30.

Named Kiwanians
The following farmers were named members-at-large of the Kiwanis club: Frank J. Hill, Cleve Mayton, Elbert Tarpley, M. E. Patrick, A. G. Martin, W. C. Griffin, A. C. Monts, O. T. Rider, Wm. Dillard and H. E. Sutton.

The Rev. Wallace R. Rogers explained the purpose of the goodwill visits. "We sometimes think some people are just a bit 'snooty,'" he said, "when it is usually just because we do not know them. We of Hempstead county will find life more pleasant when we come to know each other better. It is the principal purpose of these visits to learn to know each other better. And to know people is to like, and appreciate them."

W. S. Atkins announced the Kiwanis essay contest, the subject and rules of which will be announced later. It will be limited to youths from 12 to 20 years, inclusive, who live in Hempstead county, but outside the Hope city limits, he said. It will end July 1st. The club is posting a first prize of $50.00, and club members, and Hope merchants are adding merchandise, or other prizes.

"As a civic club we wish to work with the people of Hempstead county," Mr. Atkins said, "in solving our mutual problems. In fact, under our democratic form of government, all problems of government should be solved among the people, rather than in our state and federal congressional halls. Only in this manner can legislation interpret the will of the people," he said.

Music on Program

E. R. Grayson, a traveling salesman, entertained with several piano selections. An impromptu quartet joined him in "The Last Round-Up." This quartet was composed of W. S. Atkins, Vernon Whitten, Sid Bundy and Dwight Ridgill.

Next week the club observes Financial Independence week. J. T. Thompson, a gifted speaker if Little Rock, is to appear before the club. He is state manager of the Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York. G. T. Cross has charge of the program.

Shareholders to Ask Mail Hearing

Air Transport Stockholders Plan Appeal to Roosevelt

NEW YORK—(AP)—Sumner Sewall, Bath (Me.) banker, announced Friday that he has asked share-owners in three leading aircraft companies to join an "Air Transport Stockholders Committee," which will seek to obtain a hearing for our management on the cancellation of air mail contracts.

Sewall, a war-time "acc." last week addressed letters to the presidents of United Air Transport, Aviation Corporation and Transcontinental-Western Air Express, requesting explanations of "what you have been doing with my property."

"Two of the companies addressed have replied," Sewall's letter to stockholders states, "telling of their efforts to secure a hearing. Their letters to the postmaster general and to the president have remained unanswered."

"These letters indicate a sincere and conscientious effort to obtain a hearing—to clear themselves of the charges of 'fraud and collusion'—and eliminate the necessity to 're-bid' what is in fact our lawful property."

Bulletins

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Creation of a presidential regulatory board to supervise operation of air lines was advocated by Colonel Eddie Rickenbacker, American war ace, before the senate postoffice committee Saturday.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The army will resume transporting the air-mail over nine routes at 12:01 Monday morning. Flying of the air-mail by the army has been suspended during the past week under presidential orders.

ATHENS—(AP)—Samuel Insull was returned to Greece Saturday after a 15-hour escape from Greek surveillance aboard the freighter Maltos. Immediately upon arrival, Insull was informed by officials of the government that he must leave within 24 hours. Authorities indicated they did not believe Insull would disembark from the vessel, but might head out again across the Mediterranean sea in an attempt to seek refuge from United States warrants awaiting him.

Auto Strike Put Off for Four Days

Motor Heads Meet Johnson—New Strike Date Wednesday

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A five-day truce in the struggle between the automobile industry and union men of its shops resulted Friday from the intervention of NRA in a determined effort to prevent a strike which might seriously threaten the recovery program.

With the Executive Committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce called to consider on Monday a mediation plan proposed by Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, labor leaders postponed the threatened walkout until Wednesday.

"If the answer is not satisfactory," said William Collins, chief organizer for the Detroit area, "the plants will be closed down Wednesday and work will remain suspended until the government does enforce the National Industrial Recovery Act."

The principal issue involved is the company union.

American Federation of Labor officials asserted the right of organization set forth in the Recovery Act had not been permitted by the employers of the industry.

Instead, they contended, the employers have sought to establish company-dominated unions and have used coercion and discrimination to prevent their employees from joining other labor organizations.

General Johnson suggested two methods of settlement: (1) the creation of a board which would hear and adjudicate the complaints of both workers and employers and (2) an election at which the workers would choose representatives for collective bargaining.

These were proposed to William S. Knudsen, executive vice president of General Motors, and spokesman for the industry. He was understood to have rejected the election idea and to have found some fault, too, with Johnson's suggestions for a conciliation board.

From a lengthy conference with the NRA chief, Knudsen emerged with an announcement that the Executive Committee of the automobile chamber would meet in New York Monday to consider the situation and Johnson's proposals. The committee consists of Alvan Macauley, Alfred P. Sloan Jr. and Walter Chrysler.

Decker Is Given Another 10 Years

Fort Smith Prosecutor Raps Pen Head for Trusty's "Party"

FORT SMITH, Ark.—(AP)—A circuit court jury last Friday returned a verdict of guilty against Earl Decker, "life term" trusty guard at Tucker prison farm, charged with permitting a prisoner to escape here. The conviction carries with it a sentence of 10 years.

The verdict came after little more than 10 minutes' deliberation by the jury, ending an exciting trial that was climaxed as the prosecutor turned in his final argument to face A. G. Steadman, penitentiary superintendent, and charged him with the responsibility "for the most outrageous thing ever to occur in my memory."

The trial was the first legal action taken after a bitter criticism of the state prison system by Prosecuting Attorney Harrell Harper, which began when Decker came here to transfer four prisoners from the county jail to the penitentiary but allegedly lured long enough to stage a "drunk-on-party" from which one prisoner, B. R. Ballard, convicted forger, escaped.

Adventure Only a Pastime to Girl Who Fought War

Marina Yurlova Went Through World Conflict, Plans Dancing Career

CITED FOR BRAVERY

Cried Only Once, Persuading Surgeon to Save Wounded Leg

My MARY MARGARET McBRIDE
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK—Marina Yurlova, still in her twenties and pretty, served as private in a Cossack regiment throughout the World War, accounted for her quota of destruction among the enemy, was the only survivor of thirteen deputed to blow up a bridge, nearly lost a leg from one wound and an arm from another, and was decorated several times for bravery.

Yet she says that adventure is more pastime. Only art, she maintains, is real and worth while.

Indeed, Marina, after exploits so fantastic-sounding that the publishers of the book recording them, demanded documentary evidence, is now working hard to become a really great dancer and hopes some day to start an art revolution in America, her adopted country.

No Sympathy With War

"I have no sympathy with war," the Cossack girl said in the same level, matter-of-fact tone in which she tells convincingly of her incredible experience.

"War is just a business arrangement among countries. It grows chiefly out of the vanity of leaders who stir the people's religion and patriotism for their own ends. If you told a Cossack 'We must save our country in the name of God,' he was primed to fight before the words were out of your mouth."

"That is the way it is always in every country. Me, I do not want to fight again. I want only to work at my dancing and to see the United States begin to build an art structure of its own."

Marina was nine when her strange adventures began. She was living that summer of 1914 in a Cossack village with her father, a Cossack captain, and the rest of the family.

Daughter of Cossack

"To understand what happened to me, you must know a little about the Cossacks," she explained. "We have no nobles or rank except of the army. As a captain's daughter and a colonel's granddaughter, I had a French governess and a German nurse to look after me, but was brought up with the villagers because every Cossack believes himself the equal of anybody."

"So it was not strange that one bright summer morning, I should be allowed to go to the fields with the workers and have my petition granted. I had done it many times before. But this was a fateful day."

"When we were in the fields, suddenly the church bells in the village started ringing wildly. We all ran toward the square. Then came the Cossack soldiers riding over the hills, crying 'War! War!' They were about to take train to fight for czar and country."

Leaves With Army

"I was large for my age and strong. I pushed ahead with the women toward the station. When they crowded into a train to follow their men to the battlefield, I wedged myself in, too. Nobody paid any attention to me."

"When finally somebody did ask questions, I said I had no mother and my father was in the train ahead—a soldier. It was not true, of course. My family were left behind in our village and I have never seen them since."

"I went on to a life so strange that it seems unbelievable sometimes even to me. For days we were traveling in the Caucasus or that train and finally we came to the Turkish border. There I was handed from one person to another until I was finally adopted by my own regiment. They took care of me while they tried to find my 'father.' They gave me a uniform just like a boy's and I made myself useful currying horses, building fires, making tea."

Becomes a Soldier
"I did not whine and the men began to let me drill and take part in regular duty. After while they forgot about my 'father' and I was simply one of them, though of course they knew I was a girl."

"I went to battle with them; I went to battle with them; was one of thirteen who volunteered to blow up a bridge and was the only one whose arm back from that exploit. I can remember crying only once. That was when the doctors were going to cut off my leg. Then I yelled so that they left my leg on and today I have only a scar to show for the wound."

Before adventure was finished with her, Marina underwent the Russian revolution and was passed along from the White army to the Red, needing medical treatment all the while.

El Doradoans Deny Urging Furlough

Bank Robber, "Sprung" by Attorney Mahony, Breaks Pledge and Vanishes

EL DORADO, Ark.—None of the court officials, the prosecuting attorney nor the sheriffs of Ouachita or Union county had anything to do with obtaining a 10-day furlough for John Rogers, sentenced to 15 years in the penitentiary from Ouachita county last October for the robbery of a bank at Stephens, it was said here Friday.

Rogers was granted a furlough, after he had served three months, and promptly vanished.

Information from Little Rock was that the petition for a furlough was signed by Joe K. Mahony, lawyer, and a group of El Dorado citizens. The furlough was granted by Governor Furrill effective February 12 and expired February 22. Rogers has violated the furlough by failing to return to prison.

Mahony was out of the city Friday and will not return until Monday.

Circuit Judge L. S. Britt, who sentenced Rogers along with Leon Farley, who since died at the Tucker farm, said that he had nothing to do with the granting of the furlough and was not consulted and did not know that Rogers had been granted a furlough until he read it in the paper.

Information from Prosecuting Attorney Alvin Stevens' office was that the prosecuting attorney was not consulted and knew nothing of the furlough until it had been granted. Sheriff Grady Woolley said that he knew nothing of the furlough. Woolley said that Rogers had been seen on the streets of El Dorado during the "life" of the furlough, but had not been seen since.

Certain as to Mahony
LITTLE ROCK—H. G. McCall, secretary to the governor, said that several persons presented the request for the furlough for Rogers, but that he could not recall the names of any of them except Joe K. Mahony, El Dorado lawyer.

2nd of Dillinger Gang Convicted

Charles Mackley Sentenced to Electric Chair for Sheriff's Slaying

LIMA, Ohio.—(AP)—Charles Mackley, second member of the notorious John Dillinger gang of criminals, who has been on trial for murdering Sheriff Jess Barber, Saturday was convicted without recommendation of mercy and sentenced to die in the electric chair.

A similar verdict was given a week ago to Henry Pierpont, named as the trigger man in the slaying last October 12 when members of the gang freed Dillinger from the Allen county jail here.

Russell Clark, a third member involved in the slaying of the Ohio sheriff, will go to trial Monday.

Morrilton Mill Showing Increase

2,000 Spindles Operating in Arkansas Textile Plant

MORRILTON, Ark.—(AP)—More than 2,000 of the $500 spindles of the Morrilton cotton mill are being operated due to an increase in orders. C. V. Hoke, one of the mill owners, says.

The mill now is manufacturing only twelve and a half threads. Mr. Hoke said, but additional lines are expected to be added during the next few months.

Approximately 25 persons are employed at the mill at the present time.

County Loan Body of Five Is Named

3 Selected From Hope and One Each From Blevins and Ozan

J. E. Barham, field inspector for the Crop Production Loan Office, with headquarters in Memphis, Tenn., announced Saturday that the Hempstead county loan committee for the 1934 emergency loans would consist of:

Ralph Houton, Roy Anderson, Frank J. Hill, of Hope; Herbert Stephens of Blevins; and H. C. Murphy of Ozan.

Income Taxes to Show Big Gain

Will Exceed Last Year's Collection by 100 Per Cent

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Income tax collections under the Arkansas state law this year, will exceed by 100 per cent those of the last calendar year of the present rate of payment is continued according to an analysis prepared by Joe Bond, head of the income tax division of the state revenue department.

Using the period of January 1 to March 15 of this year and last for comparison, the report showed that collections so far in 1934, were $28,674.28 against $7,306.97 collected in the same period last year. This represents an increase of $21,367.31.

The analysis showed that 976 returns were filed to cover the calendar year 1933, with 251 of them, or 25.7 per cent reflecting a tax liability. During the previous year, up to March 15, a total of 839 returns were filed, with 100 of them or 8.4 per cent reflecting a tax liability.

An increase in the tax reflected for each return also was shown, with full paid individual returns for the current period reflecting an average tax of $28.38 as compared with an average tax of $21.84 for the previous year.

Part-paid individual returns reflect an average tax liability of $59.98 per return, against a $10 average for the previous year; full-paid corporation returns reflect an average of $119.38 per return, against $108.48 for the previous year, and part-paid corporation returns reflect an average of $69.09 per return against $46.32 for the previous year.

The number of individuals filing returns up to March 15, whose returns reflect a tax liability, are 220 against 86 for the same period last year, and 31 corporations as compared with 14 for the same period last year.

The increases in collections so far this year showed $4,189.12 in individual returns; in full-paid corporation returns $2,651.76; in part-paid corporation returns $785.93, and in collections on returns from prior years, deficiencies and delinquents $11,895.63.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN Washington

Mind of Big Business Blank on Recovery Remedy... It's Total Mystery to Darrow... Judge Allen Is Touted For Supreme Court... Dried Milk Is New Wrinkle.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON—The New Deal, it appears after the big NRA code conferences, may or may not be a process of the blind leading the blind. It seems true that the major Roosevelt policies often zigzag, crisscross, stumble, falter, and get all balled up with one another.

The NRA itself—that "partnership of government, industry, and labor"—is pretty well bogged as it now stands, and the greatest wonder is that General Johnson, floundering in a labyrinth of economic complexities, hasn't gone stark, raving mad long since.

But the thing you realized as you watched and talked with the code authorities—spokesmen of American industry—was that the keen American business man, though he knows exactly what will bring profits to his own company, has no more idea of what should be done to achieve recovery than is involved in the suggestion that we'll somehow "muddle through." One example of that:

American business constantly has insisted that the budget be balanced. But the strongest proposal from the code meetings was that the CWA be continued so that industry needn't be forced to absorb new millions of unemployed before it was ready to do so.

The millions should be employed by the government on a subsistence basis, to be reabsorbed into private employment in proportion as industry expanded.

That balances no budgets. It requires the type of taxes business men hate.

The lack of leadership or concerted program on industry's part was marked by an utter absence of labor or consumer leadership.

Since there is no other political leaders on the horizon, it seems that the government, as if by default, offers the only semblance of leadership—and if Roosevelt falls down on the job it's going to be just too bad.

Darrow at Sea
"My mind is like a judge's—just a perfect blank," said Chairman Clarence Darrow just after Roosevelt had created the NRA Board of Review, which will try to ferret out monopolistic practices under codes and protect small business.

"How long is the profit system going to last?" he was asked.

"I'll probably know by the time we're through here—if it lasts that long."

Supreme Court Bound
Judge Florence E. Allen of Ohio is headed straight toward a seat on the United States Supreme Court, if you can believe all the gossip that has followed her elevation to the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals.

Anyway, Roosevelt is understood to be open-minded about it. He hasn't any more objections to appointing a woman to the high bench than he had to naming Frances Perkins to his cabinet.

He expects to have to fill three or more vacancies before he leaves the White House.

Judge Allen, now on the step next below the supreme court, has served 12 years on the supreme court of Ohio. She is considered a liberal, is 50 years old, and unmarried.

Not So Appetizing

Milk at three cents a quart is promised by the Department of Agriculture for those who would appreciate the price. Dried skimmed milk, mixed with water, is the answer.

The department finally has approved a moisture-proof cheap container for the powder, which will make it available in retail stores. Heretofore, it hasn't been possible to pack the stuff in small quantities in such manner that it wouldn't become moist and spoiled.

Assistant Secretary Rex Tugwell went to Puerto Rico—which needs rehabilitating—well primed with data on the virtues of dried skimmed milk.

Down there they have a law compelling a mixture of greenish substance, just so the fluid produced by adding water will look so nauseating that no one can drink it. The law has proved quite effective.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Praise Gives Children Confidence—Encouraging Sensitive Youngsters Helps Boost Their Self-Respect

If you don't want your child to grow up lacking faith and confidence in himself, give him a pat on the back occasionally. So Olive Roberts Barton advises in another article in her series on modern child training.

During the years before school, a little child is feeding his "self" instinct.

If he appears to be indifferent to the comfort of others it is not to be worried about.

On the contrary he needs help in satisfying the urge that nature has put there. If he is to develop an assurance and self-confidence it is now that the seed is well-sown and fertilized.

The fertilizer is praise.

It is quite common to give the little boy or girl material things to instill a feeling of material pride. This is a mistake. To be sure he needs toys, and many of them, to keep him busy. Also it does set up the "possession complex" which is strongly associated with the "self complex." But when it comes to assurance of worth in himself, possessions alone fall far short of the mark.

Praise Breeds Confidence

Praise is a powerful booster of self-respect. In the first place he is suspicious that he cannot do things well, as of course he can't.

Secondly, he is so busy with his many activities and impulses he is bound to have accidents and get into trouble.

And thirdly, not having enough reason developed yet to act as a stay on his conduct, and having other peculiarities characteristic of young children, he may not always stick to truth but mix fantasy with fact.

These things all make him very prone to criticism and scolding, or even ridicule just at a time when he needs the reverse.

No one says this is not a hard problem for a mother. It is indeed. To keep him bolstered in his own esteem and yet to train him to be a likable little person and not barge over everybody around him is a real task.

And yet it is surprising how much trouble can be avoided by this very process. Being mentally happy, he will be more placid, and there will be fewer daily storms.

The other half, of course, is to have his routine so regular that he will come to accept orders without too much stampeding. He can be, and should be, "conditioned" from early babyhood to habit. Habit plays a strong part in his life.

Encourage Sensitive Type
There will be trouble, of course, and there will be bad times. But to work in some praise wherever possible is building the thing all mothers want their children to have, confidence in self. Mothers of older children who have little courage and no faith in themselves often wonder why this is so. It may be that in early childhood they lost it.

In families, it may be argued, some children do very well while others lack the qualities of leadership, and so the same upbringing. This is due to the difference in the children themselves, very likely. The two types before described in these articles account for much. The introvert or sensitive type needs more encouragement and often it is he who gets the least.

We cannot put spunk or assurance in a child by constant scolding. It is this type of child who is very likely to turn badly under hurt. He invents a false or defiant courage to cover up a cringing heart.

Praise a little child for his awkward attempts to do things. His most vulnerable spot is his doing. To tell him for her he is sweet and pretty may not do any harm, but it is not the constructive praise that gets results.

All children need praise, generally speaking, and it is an outmoded idea that they don't.

"Did you hear about Bingo's rare luck?"

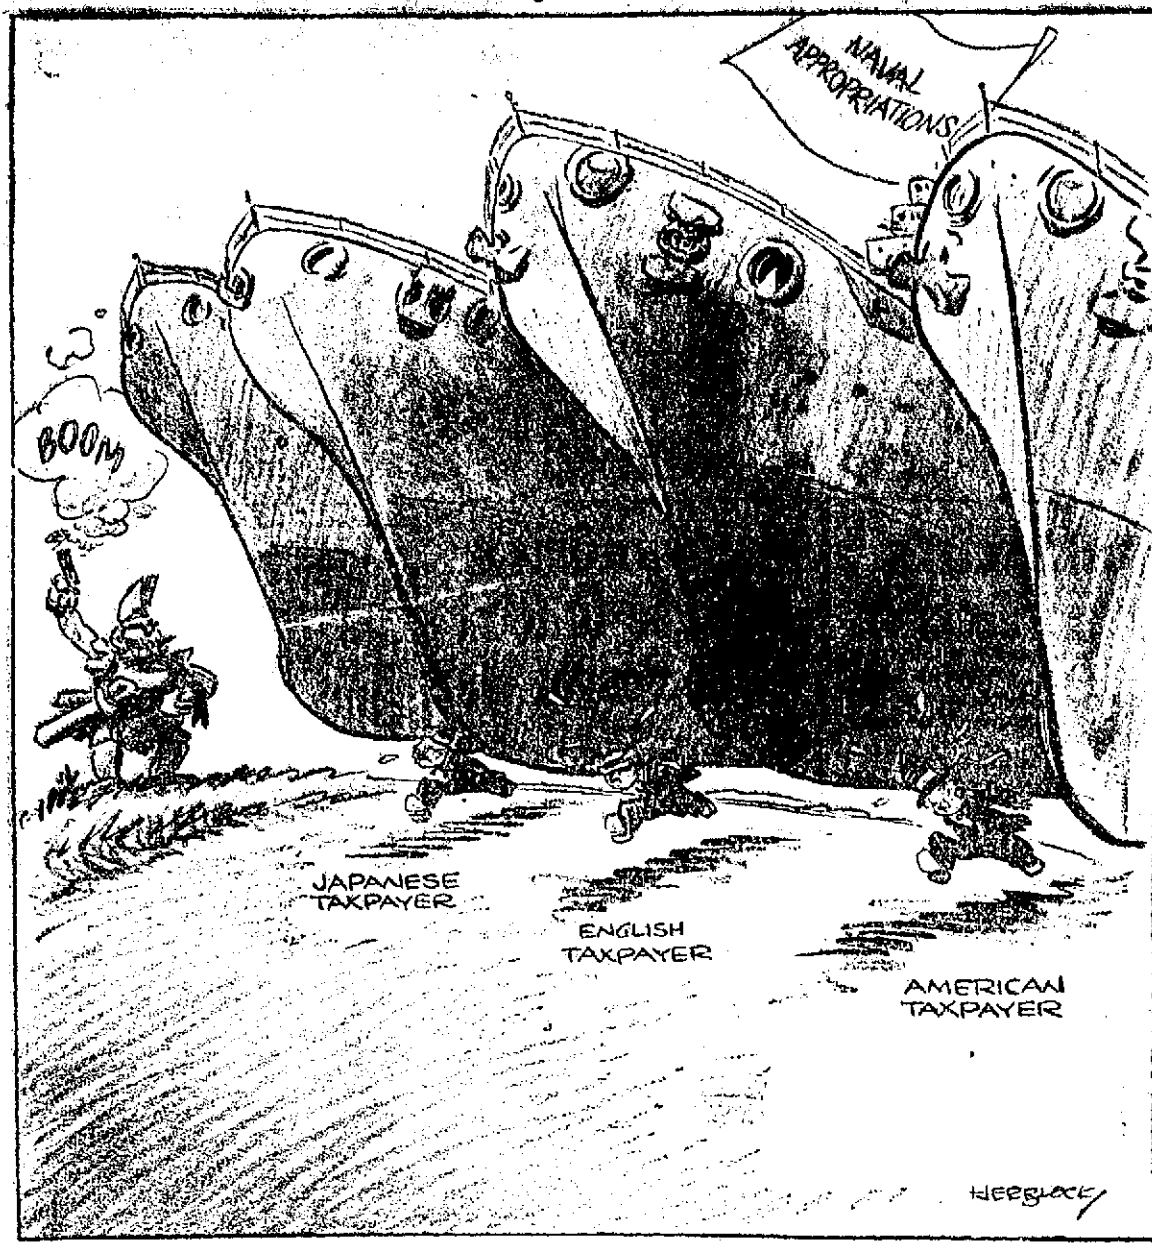

"No, what was it?"

"He was operated on for the removal of a fine pearl which he had accidentally swallowed while he was eating some oysters on the half shell."

"Was the pearl very valuable?"

"Yes. When examined by the experts they declared that it was worth enough so that I would pay for the cost of the operation and also the funeral."

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Wives, Observe This Advice on Good Grooming

The woman who manages a home is justified in saying that it requires great resourcefulness to keep perfectly groomed, what with the housework and all. Obviously, it's not easy to dust under the beds and keep a coffee in order or to wash dishes and have hand-stay smooth and soft. Just the same, by devoting twenty minutes to personal appearance before you go down stairs to get breakfast, you're less likely to feel frowsy when the lady next door drops in to return your cake tin.

After brushing teeth and washing, carefully comb your hair and put on a little powder and rouge. Don't let anything or anybody coax you out of your own room with hair in curlers and face unpowdered.

When the family have started for school or work, wrap a clean towel around your head to keep dust out of your hair and steam from spoiling the wave. If the doorbell rings, take off the towel and meet your caller with every hair in place.

And don't forget rubber gloves. It takes a little time to get used to them but, once you do, you'll agree that they help to keep hands lovely.

A beauty box containing some lotion, powder and a few cotton pads can be kept in the kitchen and you'll find it mighty handy when you want to re-powder your nose but haven't time to go to your room.

hut is completed, and awaiting the announcement for the opening night.—Scribe Clyde Hill.

Today's Pattern

Good mornings will be enjoyed if you make and wear a frock like this one. It has cool comfortable sleeves, a neat collar and handy pockets. Easy to Make.

Pattern 171

AS neat a number as you can hope to find is the smart frock illustrated here. Printed percale or checked gingham are the suggested materials. Designed in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42, size 38 requires 2 1/4 yards of 35-inch material plus 3/4 yard contrast; without contrast, 3 3/4 yards.

To secure a PATTERN and simple sewing chart of this model, tear out this sketch and mail it to JULIA ROYD, 103 PARK AVENUE, NEW YORK, N. Y., together with 15 CENTS IN COIN. Be sure to enclose, on a separate sheet of paper, YOUR NAME, FULL ADDRESS, YOUR SIZE, THE NUMBER OF THIS PATTERN (No. 171), and mention the NAME OF THIS NEWSPAPER.

Honoring Erin's Saint

Have you ever heard the story of how Ireland got its name? I'll tell you so you'll understand from whence old Ireland came; Shure a little bit of Heaven fell from out the sky one day. And nestled on the ocean in a spot so far away; And when the angel's found it, shure it looked so sweet and fair; They said, "Suppose we leave it, for it looks so peaceful there;" So they sprinkled it with star dust just to make the shamrocks grow; 'Tis the only place you'll find them, no matter where you go; Then they dotted it with silver, to make its lakes so grand; And when they had it finished, shure they called it Ireland. 'Tis a dear old land of faries and of wondrous wishing wells, And no where on God's green earth have they such lakes and dells; No wonder that the angels loved its Shamrocked border shore.

'Tis a little bit of Heaven, and we love it more and more.—J. K. B.

One of the more pleasant of the spring murder mysteries is "Mr. Digweed and Mrs. Lumb," by Eden Philpotts (Macmillan: $2).

Here we have two middle-aged hermits occupying adjacent houses in a little English seacoast town. One of them vanishes, leaving his mortgage property to the other, mysterious threats on the survivor's life then are heard. The local police investigate and get nowhere.

Luckily, one of the cops is in love with the daughter of the village organist, and the organist, something of a logician, gets interested, brings his brain to bear, and figures out the solution. It's an engaging and ingenious tale—though I think some readers will see the solution coming.

Harry Stephen Keeler can write the most complicated yarns known to mortal man, and his newest one, "The Mystery of the Fiddling Chucks" (Dutton: $2), is right up to standard. It has to do with a safe-cracker who always plays a fiddle when he confronts an unopened safe, and such unlikely ingredients as a young Chinese who is hit by a hit-and-run motorist, and a threat of war between the United States and Japan, are mixed in somehow. It's very dizzy, but it does keep moving.

"Whispering Tongues," by Laurence Kirk (Doubleday: $2), is a somber study of a little English town in which a man is accused of poisoning his wife. He wins acquittal, but gossip makes the town miserable.

March murders follow, and a morbid fear possesses all the townsfolk. A young nobleman out of a job finally bobs up with the solution.

"Murder Mansion," by J. H. Wallis (Dutton: $2), is a run-of-mine story about five people who claim shares in the estate of a fabulously rich old New York woman, recently deceased. They move into her house—and strange deaths, seemingly accidental,

NEWS OF CHURCHES

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

"Broken Cisterns" will be the pastor's sermon subject Sunday morning at 10:35 o'clock. "The Compassion of Jesus" will be the sermon subject at 7:30 o'clock Sunday evening.

Mrs. Routon will be at the organ at both services. One of her morning numbers will be "Going Home," from "New World Symphony," by Dvorak.

Last Sunday there were nearly 200 adults in our Sunday school. The men had 115 in their two classes. The school meets at 9:45 o'clock.

The young people's group meeting is at 6:45 o'clock.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH Wallace R. Rogers, Pastor

An unusual pleasure is to be given the congregation of the First Baptist church on Sunday morning at the preaching hour. The male quartet from Ouachita college will be present and will sing several numbers, and Dr. J. R. Grant, president of the college, will preach.

Dr. Grant is a favorite with the members of the First Baptist church and always is welcomed, but this is the first time he has been accompanied by the quartet. These four young men are in demand all over Arkansas, and were one of the most popular features at the Baptist State convention which met this year in El Dorado.

Ouachita has more than four hundred college students this year, and Dr. Grant comes with a message of optimism. The First Baptist church has a number of students in Ouachita, and contributes monthly to the support of the college. The church, therefore, feels that Dr. Grant is a part of employed staff, and extends a cordial welcome to all who would like to attend to do so.

The pastor, the Rev. Wallace R. Rogers, will preach at the evening service, speaking from II Timothy 2:1-10 on the subject, "Light Through the Shadows." After the evening sermon the pastor will administer the ordinance of baptism to a number who have recently united with the church.

FIRST BAPTIST SUNDAY SCHOOL Lee H. Garland, Supl.

A very interesting contest has been in progress for a number of weeks in the First Baptist Sunday school between the Men's Bible Class and the Althean Class for women. No post-ers have been made, and no campaign has been carried on but each Sunday reads the report of attendance these classes listen with keen interest. The winning class is always ready with an, "I told you so" and much friendly repartee is indulged in.

The whole Sunday school is feeling the urge to do better work which the fair days of spring bring, and on last Sunday there were 367 people in attendance. It is the desire of the faculty that four hundred be in the school Sunday. The various departments, in spite of crowded conditions, always make place for others who attend, and make them feel that it is a fine thing to come to Sunday school.

It is not the desire of the church school to reach people who are already affiliated with some class, but it is the purpose and hope of the school to reach all Baptists and all unaffiliated people possible. All sizes and ages are welcome, and a place is here for any who will come.

Approximately 30,000 people are killed, one million injured and about two billion dollars worth of property damaged or destroyed upon the highways each year.

begin to thin their numbers. Young love eventually finds a way—and also solves the murders and wins the fortune.

Eddie Cantor at Saenger Sunday

"Roman Scandals" Playing at Local House Three Days

Eddie Cantor, elfin comedian, has new complications to make his banjo-eyes pop in "Roman Scandals," his fourth annual screen musical comedy. With Ruth Etting, Gloria Stuart, David Manners and this year's prize collection of Goldwyn beauties, the picture comes to the Saenger Theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

The season's fastest stepping and merriest tunes are promised in a rollicking yarn of adventure among the beautiful slave girls of ancient Rome, the Caesars and their ferocious lions, which winds up the chariot race as breath-taking funny as the bullfight in "The Kid From Spain."

Eddie has a lively and gay song in "Keep Young and Beautiful." The dancing feet of a hundred of Goldwyn's ace beauties pound out the fast and happy rhythm of Eddie ditty and in the spectacular Slave Market scene they chant a refrain to the heart-throbs of Ruth Etting's lament, "No More Love." The shimmering costumes of gladiator and the dramatic dance interlude in which Busby Berkeley has set Miss Etting's song make for an effect that has never before been seen on the screen.

Two good short subjects complete the program and Manager Swanke reports that on account of the high film rental, downstairs prices will prevail for all seats.

Your Health

By DR. MORRIS FISUBEN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Do you realize how much you depend on ordinary sanitary precautions for your health?

In most large cities, the boards of health demand that dishes used in public eating places shall be rinsed or sprayed thoroughly, or immersed in clean boiling water for one minute before being used again. If the temperature of the rinsing water is as low as 180 degrees, Fahrenheit, which is under the boiling point (212 degrees), the dishes must be kept in the water for not less than two minutes.

In New Jersey, there is a law that all utensils shall be treated with boiling water, or steam under pressure, for at least three minutes after service.

Whenever dishes are washed by use of machines, the safety is more certain, because the machine usually requires boiling water and the use of thick soap solutions.

In most hospitals the precautions about dish washing are very rigorous. After dishes are used, they are cleaned first and then boiled.

The dishes are kept in cupboards which are dry, well ventilated, and constantly watched to make certain they are free from dust or insects. Moreover, the employees who handle the dishes are required to wash their hands thoroughly and frequently.

Use of soap in dish washing is especially important, because the soap tends to kill germs, acting by its change in the physical conditions surrounding the germs, rather than by any special antiseptic effect.

For this reason, modern laundries which wash white clothes thoroughly in soap and water solutions tend to produce almost bacteriologically clean conditions of the clothing.

If the clothing is exposed to sunlight for drying, and then to the heat that is necessary for suitable pressing, additional safeguards against bacterium are involved.

In addition to the cleaning of clothing, bed linen, and dishes, the problem of cleanliness involves removal of dust from floors and from the air in rooms as well as from furniture.

The modern vacuum cleaner is, for that reason, a great aid in preventing infection. It picks up dusts which may be contaminated with human excretions, and which are not picked up by ordinary brushing or the use of a broom.

You should see that your children particularly be taught habits of personal cleanliness early in life. The desirability of washing the hands thoroughly before meals, and always after the lavatory, cannot be impressed upon the child too frequently.

Use of an individual towel and desirability of having other personal articles, such as handkerchiefs and napkins, are other lessons which you should give to your children early in life.

These measures are important not only from the esthetic point of view, but also because they mean so much to the future health of the child.

Medicines rightly used can be of immense aid and comfort to the afflicted; wrongly used, they may cause serious damage to the human body.

When a doctor prescribes a medicine for you, it is for you alone, and not for anybody else in the family. Hence, old prescriptions should not be saved, but should be disposed of as soon as possible after you need them no longer.

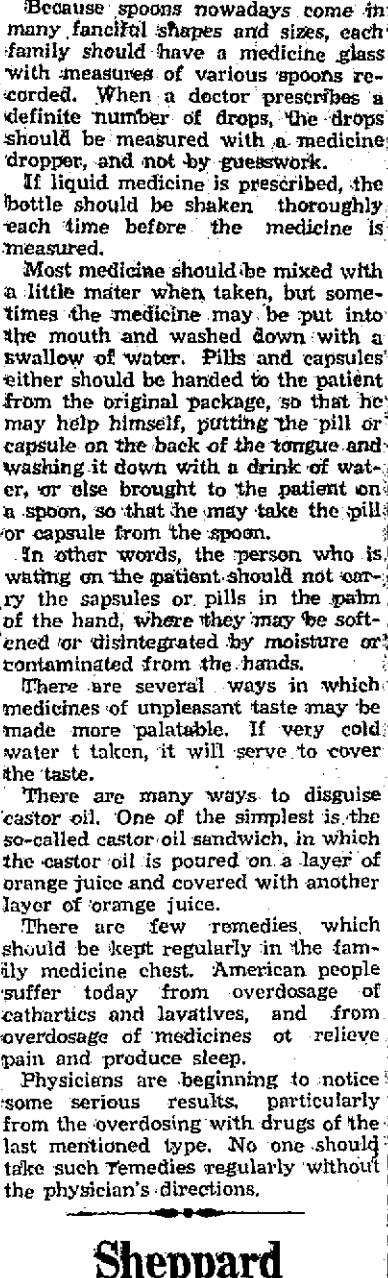

The doctor usually writes on his prescription and the drugist recopies on the label, the directions for taking the medicine. Therefore, when giving

There is more incentive today for young men and women to take business training than there has been since the World War. The NRA, ERA, CWA, etc., created thousands of new positions. These places practically absorbed the available supply of qualified people. Under our Great President, business is certain to improve. This means thousands of additional positions to be filled. Why not start to school at once, so as to be ready a few months hence to take one of these places? There will never be a better time. Day and Night School. "Yes," said the railroad ticket agent in Boston to the lady at the window, after spending a quarter of an hour looking up trains, berths and time tables. "I can fix you up with a through ticket to California and return all right."

"How nice!" exclaimed the lady. "When are you going?" inquired the agent.

"Some day when I can afford it," replied the lady. "Thank you so much."

RECALLED YOUR TROUBLE, OF SOMETIME AGO, WHEN FIRST OL' DINNY YOU BROUGHT HOME TO SHOW--SO, DEEP IN TH' FOREST, WHERE NO ONE COULD SEE, I TIED TH' DINOSAUR, WITH VINES, TO A TREE!

AFoot AN UNARMED, I ENTERED TH' TOWN--TH' GUARDS PASSED ME, BY WITH NEVER A FROWN--DOWN TH' MAIN STEM I WALKED WITH A WILL--HEADED FOR HOME--A CAVE IN TH' HILL--

HI, GUY!

OH, HELLO, FOOZY? WHERE YOU BEEN?

WASH TUBS

WHEE!

BANG! BANG! BANG!

BANG! BANG!

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

Y-YOU... YOU MEAN, GIVE ME MONEY?

EXACTLY! AND THE ONLY THING YOU HAVE TO DO IS TO VACATE THE HOUSE AND TURN IT OVER TO ME... AND I'LL PAY YOU WELL FOR MOVING!

THAT'S SIMPLE ENOUGH, ISN'T IT? WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THE IDEA, SYLVESTER?

GOOD MORNING, MRS. COOK

YES, MR. SCUTTLE, WASN'T IT! I SUPPOSE YOU HAVE COME TO INFORM ME THAT I HAVE ONLY TWO MORE DAYS IN WHICH TO GET THE MONEY?

MRS. COOK, I'VE COME TO BRING YOU GOOD NEWS! I'M NOT GOING TO PUT YOU OUT OF YOUR HOME... I'M GOING TO BUY YOU OUT!!

WHY, I HARDLY KNOW WHAT TO SAY, MR. SCUTTLE

OH, MR. SCUTTLE, I'M SO HAPPY, I'M SIMPLY BESIDE MYSELF!!

AH, BUT TAKE IT EASY! THAT OLD BOY ISN'T GIVING THINGS AWAY FOR NOTHING...
